Alfred the Great, who was the king of England during the 9th century, commissioned the Latin to English translation of The Consolation of Philosophy by Boethius and Ecclesiastical History by Bede. The translations contributed to the development of English prose during the time of King Alfred the Great.

The history of translation has been a topic that has long been debated by scholars and historians, though it is widely accepted that translation pre-dates the bible. The bible tells of different languages as well as giving insight to the interaction of speakers from different areas. The need for translation has been apparent since the earliest days of human interaction, whether it be for ...
